

ABSTRACT

A method for fabricating a chip scale package is described. The method utilizes wafer level processes to obtain a chip level package. The method particularly avoids the use of mechanical grinding by the novel use of molding, extruding, and etching technology.